i have installed blastchat on my site and it is working well, but i cant seem to integrate my website login with the chat. when someone clicks on the chat, you are directed to the chat and the only thing that is required is a nickname user. I want people to register for the chat or if they have registered for my site, they only have to use their user name. as it is, anyone can chat without registering, and i dont want that?? please help

Explore room configuration, you have options there to disable guest access or allow read-only guest access.
